

The Plaza Arts Center

in the heart of Eatonton's historic district

The Plaza Arts Center has quickly earned a place as one of the cultured jewels of Georgia. Since it opened in spring of 2008, it has hosted 25,000 visitors, staged 100 public performances and events, and accommodated several hundred private and business gatherings.

500 seat, state-of-the-art theater showcases top international stars of symphonic, jazz, country, pop and gospel music programs, plays and ballets and is home to the renowned Kazanetti String Quartet.

Spacious reception hall, complete with adjacent kitchen, is in demand for weddings and business meetings, and has offered sit-down dinner shows for 140 guests.

Educational outreach offers special performances for area schools where students can interact with visiting artists.

Scheduled art classes are held in the arts studio.

Old School History Museum

The Old School History Museum is housed in four classrooms of the original 1916 Eatonton School, now the home of the Plaza Arts Center. Visitors will experience the following:

A vintage drugstore complete with marble-topped soda fountain, 1940's jukebox, ice cream chairs and tables and period photographs.

A reproduction of the turn-of-the-century downtown Eatonton with a variety of storefronts. These "windows in time" feature artifacts and treasures destined to stir childhood memories.

A history gallery that guides visitors through early Indian culture, the transition of frontier land to prosperous cotton farms, the impact of the Civil War and Reconstruction, and into the 20th Century.

A historic classroom restored to its early 1900's condition. The classroom boasts its original blackboard, cloakroom, vintage desks and a collection of student memorabilia.
